- The S&P Global ESG Score is a relative score that measures a company's performance and its management of the most relevant sustainability-related risks, opportunities, and impacts.

Mexico City, Mexico – October 3, 2024.- FEMSA in a demonstration of its commitment and leadership in the industry internationally with sustainable, environmental, social and corporate governance (ESG) business practices, improved its score within the Standard & Poor's (S&P) Global Corporate Sustainability Assessment (CSA) for the fifth consecutive year. This year, in addition to obtaining an improvement in its general evaluation, it managed to stand out in climate strategy, waste management and water efficiency.

The S&P Global ESG Score is a relative score that measures a company's performance and its management of ESG risks, opportunities, and impacts compared to its peers within the same industry ranking.

The S&P Global ESG Score takes into account the size of the company, its sector and environmental, social and governance performance, being the basis for participation in the Dow Jones Sustainability Indices (DJSI) that will be presented at the end of the year. The assessment is based on a combination of company disclosures, media and stakeholder analysis, modelling approaches and an in-depth analysis of its performance through the Standard & Poor's (S&P) Global Corporate Sustainability Assessment (CSA).

The S&P Global ESG Score uses a dual-materiality approach whereby a sustainability-related topic is considered material if it has a significant impact on society or the environment and a significant impact on a company's value drivers, competitive position, and long-term shareholder value creation.

FEMSA obtained high scores in water efficiency, packaging management, climate strategy practices, human capital management, human rights, supply chain management, among other aspects evaluated.
