KOF Brazil – A Successful Turnaround Story

This experience provided us with the ability to take over the control of the presale function, developed the traditional channel, eliminating transshipment, improving our competitive position ...

... and at the same time we regained leverage to establish better selling terms

* Does not include Beer Volume.

KOF Colombia – A Story of Innovation

When we arrived in Colombia, we found low per capita consumption of CSD's and a weak competitive position of KO Brands

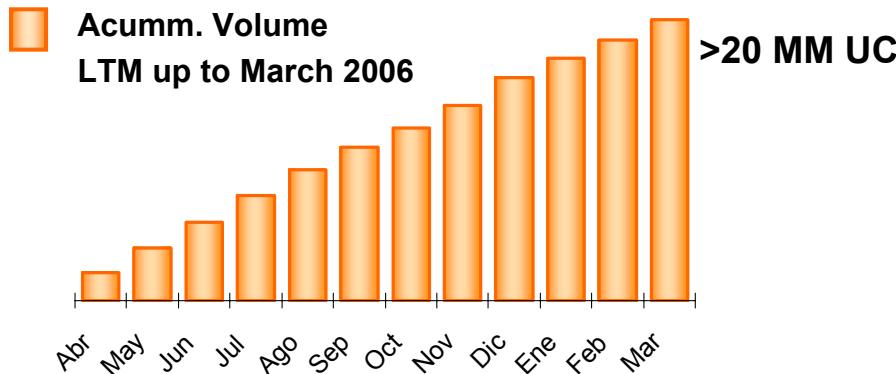

Together with KO, we built a new flavor portfolio to increase our market share in this segment

- Launching Crush Multi-Flavor brand
- Creating consumer promotions and activations
- Developing innovative in & out flavor strategy
- Improving brand execution in the point of sale

Crush has exceeded volume expectations and reached a relevant market share

Profitability

... which together with a better packaging segmentation have allowed us to capture more profitable volumes

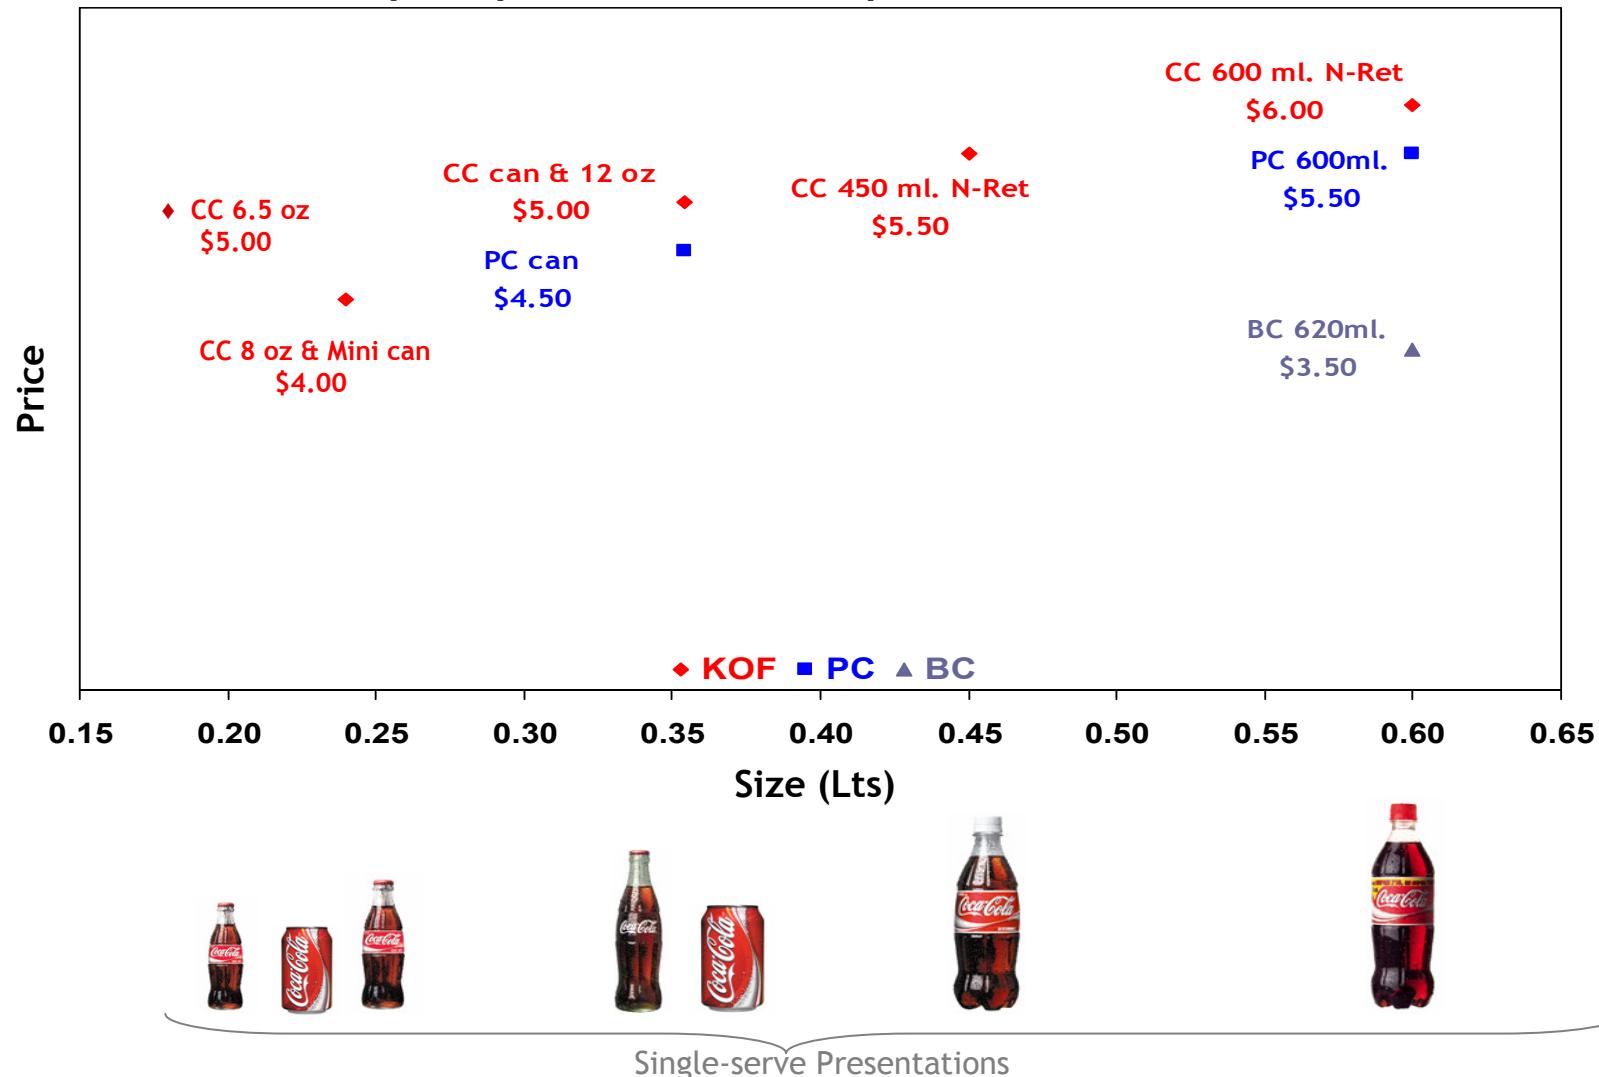

Multi-segmentation model...

- We have been developing an execution model segmented through a differentiated portfolio, adapting to the competitive environment of the country, like we did it in Argentina.
- The revenue management strategies implemented in Argentina, have provided us with a base of knowledge that we are now implementing in Mexico

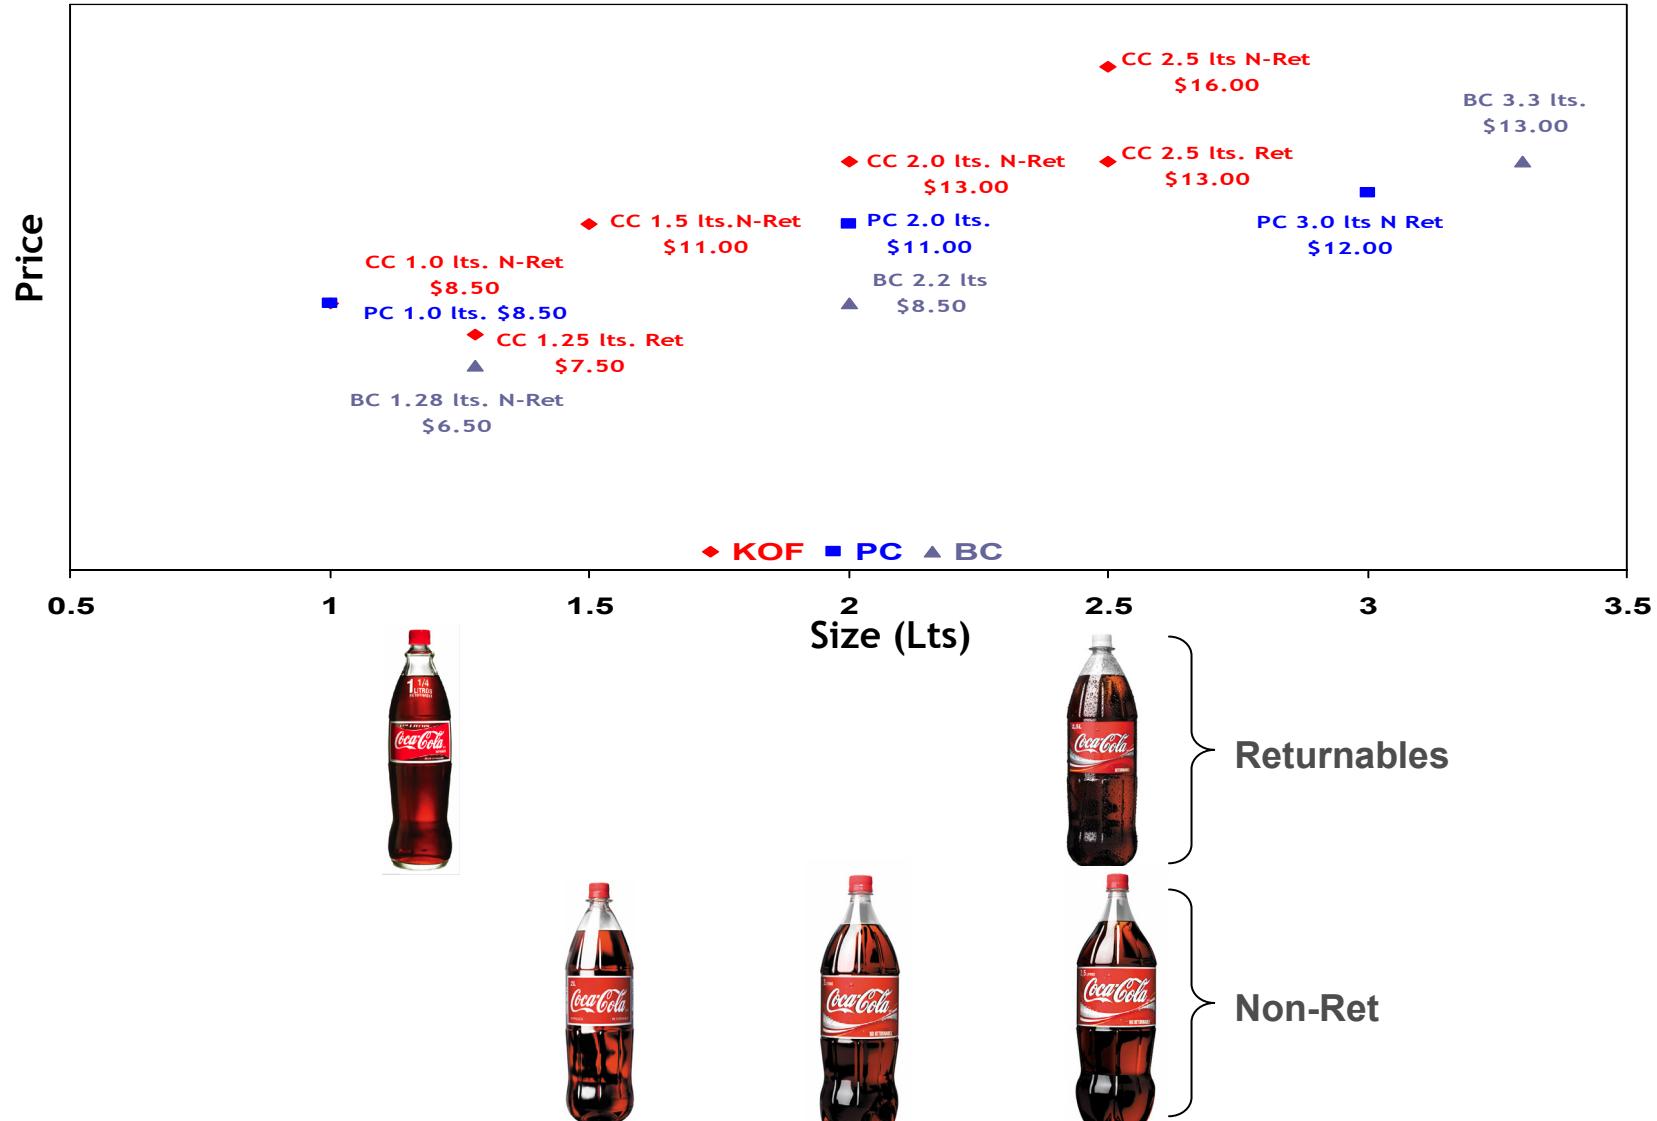

Our “Portfolio of Choice” in Single Serve....

During the last two years we also adapted our packaging/product portfolio improving our competitive position, offering more than 13 different packaging presentations for brand Coca-Cola in Mexico with different price points, from Ps. 4 up to Ps. 16

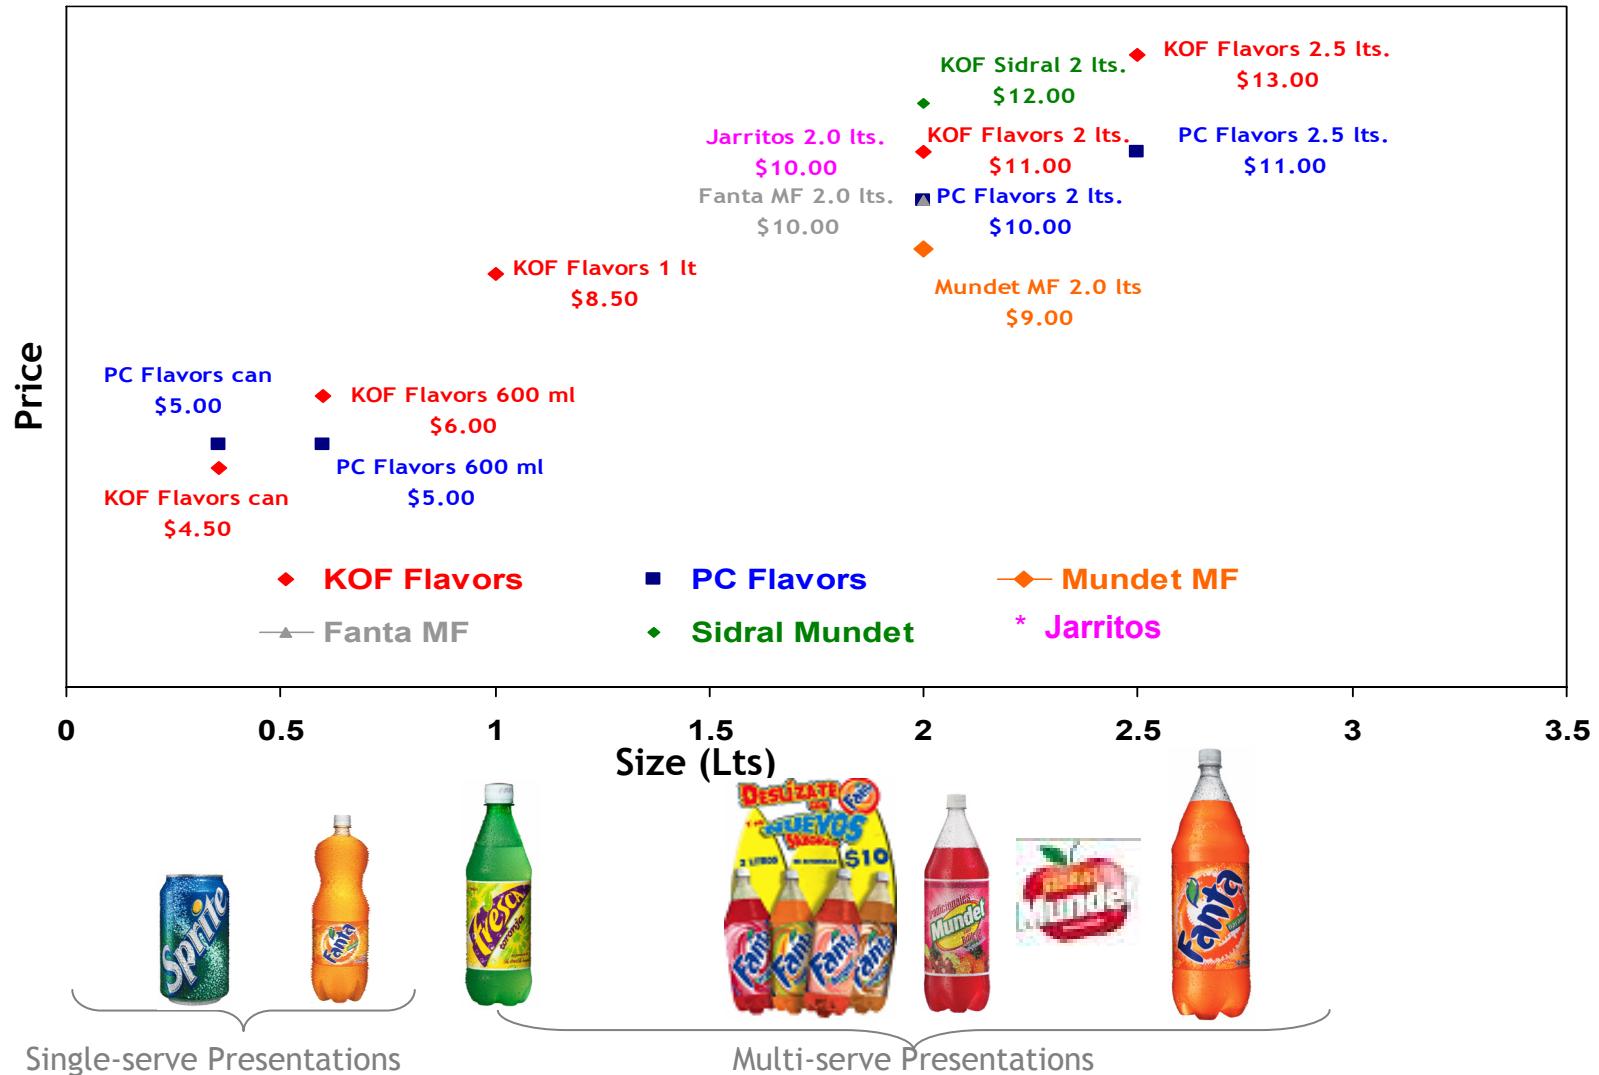

....in Multi-serve presentations...

Additionally, we are strengthening our returnable portfolio with the introduction of new returnable presentations

... and for the flavors

We are also reinforcing our flavor portfolio with the reintroduction of Mundet and Fanta Multi-flavors as regional brand players
